AGITATORS OF STRIKE ARE LASHED

Six Reputed Leaders of Rumpus in California's Fruit Industry Beaten

OFFICIAL EYES SHUT

Victims of Farmers' Ire Taken from Jail

Vacaville, Calif., Dec. 5.—(AP)—Six reputed leaders of a strike which has disrupted fruit picking in Vaca valley were kidnaped from Vacaville jail early today, whisked away in automobiles and reported painted red, beaten and told never to return to this vicinity.

The men were among 15 persons arrested during a clash in front of the public library Sunday. Police estimated 1,000 people participated in the fray when townsmen broke up a parade of 150 striking fruit workers who are demanding a wage of $1.50 a day.

The six were taken from jail by a group of men who drove into the country, in seven automobiles, warning others not to follow. License plates of the cars were covered.

After a prolonged search for the party, which he "guessed" was made up of irate townspeople and farmers, Police Chief O. E. Alley said he understood the erstwhile prisoners had been turned loose 10 miles in the country and their captors had returned home.

Reports reaching Chief Alley were the asserted strike leaders had part of their hair cut off, were painted red, beaten and sent off in pairs with warnings not to return.

Alley predicted the incident would result in immediate resumption of farm activity, which for more than a week has been reported virtually suspended because of turbulent conditions attendant on the strike.

The "Vigilante" arrived at the jail in seven automobiles, the license numbers of which were covered. They drove away at high speed and warned newspaper men not to follow.

Last night, following the disturbance in front of the City Hall, threats of the alleged strike leaders were to be taken out of jail "beaten up" and run out of the country were reported heard on the streets.

Chief of Police O. E. Alley, who was playing cards at Firemen's hall as the six prisoners were taken from the jail said he would investigate. He said he had heard of the threats.

The six men taken from the jail were Claude Thompson, Sacramento; Bob Nelson, Mountain View; Tom Clark, no address; T. Martinez, Sacramento; Marvin Blackburn, Sacramento, and R. B. Matney, Sacramento.

Max Rodriguez, Arthur Warner and A. Alley, also arrested during the city library disturbance, were not taken from the jail. Six other persons, one a woman, who were arrested after Sunday's disturbance, were taken to the county jail at Fairfield last night and ordered held on charges of disturbing the peace.

Vacaville residents said speakers at a mass-meeting several days ago suggested the way to settle the labor difficulty was to drive persons who they claimed were outside agitators from the community.

TREASURY REPORT

Script Being Used In Ohio Community Business Thriving

No Longer Is the Economic Life of Yellow Springs Paralyzed by Scarcity of Government Currency

Yellow Springs, O., Dec. 5.—A small scale example of how a larger community, possibly even a nation, might substitute paper scrip or aluminum chips for gold and silver currency is in successful operation in this farming area—and business is thriving on it.

In this case the "substitute currency" is provided by a joint stock corporation instead of the government, but the principles involved are so intriguing to economists that Dr. Irving Fisher of Yale University recently visited Yellow Springs to study the system. He afterward gave it an endorsement.

No longer does business and labor have to remain paralyzed here because government currency has become seriously scarce. Yellow Springs, as far as ordinary needs are concerned, doesn't have to worry about why the old money disappeared or where it went. For any person within trading distance who lacks "regular cash," now can take his labor or his products to the Yellow Springs exchange, and deal in scrip in lieu of money.

The system is a form of barter with the chief exceptions that the sellers do not have to hunt for buyers, and use scrip to simplify their transactions. The exchange store serves as go-between, just as any retail store serves in a regular-money system of economics. The exchange, however, uses its own "money".

LEGAL TANGLE KEEPS CHILD FROM MOTHER

Columbus, O., Dec. 5.—(AP)—Margaret Louise Albrecht, a ruddy faced lass of some six years sat nervously in the court room of Common Pleas Judge Charles A. Leach today while he tried to untangle the skein of legal proceedings involving her custody.

Margaret Louise was brought into court on a habeas corpus petition, started by her mother, Mrs. Juanita Albrecht Croft, of Lima. All that mattered to Margaret Louise was that she could not go home with "mama".

The child's mother and father were divorced at Toledo early this year. They had separated while living in Mansfield, but the child's mother did not obtain her freedom until early this year when a Toledo court granted her divorce petition and custody of the child.

When Mrs. Croft and her husband split, the child was given into the custody of her grandmother, who after several years placed the child in the Richland County Home and later the Methodist Children's Home at Worthington, O. Mrs. Croft knew nothing of this.

After she remarried in Lima recently, Mrs. Croft wrote to the child's grandmother and asked that she send Margaret Louise to her because she could now provide a home for her. Much to her chagrin, she learned the child had been placed in the Home.

Perplexed by the many court orders, Judge Leach postponed the hearing until next Monday, when Attorney Ernest Grabel, counsel for the mother, will attempt to have all the court orders available for the judge's inspection. Meanwhile, Margaret Louise will remain in the Worthington Home.

WORK NOW RUSHED ON NEW RAILROAD

PROGRESS IS MADE WHILE INJUNCTION IN OFFING

East Liverpool, O., Dec. 5.—(AP)—Orders to increase the speed of constructing the Montour railroad's 13-mile branch line from Negley, O., to Smith's Ferry, Pa., were in effect today although an injunction suit against it was pending in the United States district court at Cleveland.

"We have received no official notice of the federal court suit and are proceeding with the construction work," said W. B. Moore, attorney for the railroad.

To speed the work on the branch which will give the Youngstown steel district improved access to the Ohio river's cheaper freight rates, the Montour called a third contracting company onto the job.

STAGG IS THROUGH

Chicago, Dec. 5.—(AP)—Amos Alonzo Stagg today said he was through at the University of Chicago and would not accept the position of chairman of the university's committee on intercollegiate athletics.

Winston-Salem, N. C., Dec. 5.—(AP)—Russell T. Sherwood, missing witness in the Seabury investigation into fiscal affairs of New York City, is alive and well and has taken steps to fight for his rights, Cardis Walker, an accountant, said here today.

Sherwood, one-time secretary to and close associate of James J. Walker, former Mayor of New York, spent several days here last week, Cardis Walker said and employed the latter to make an investigation concerning assessments, penalties and liens filed against him by the collector of internal revenue in New York.

Missing for months, Sherwood was quoted by Walker as saying he had been held a prisoner on a ranch in northern New Mexico. Walker said Sherwood told him he had been advised to remain away from New York during the first part of this year, but that with the convening of the Democratic National Convention in Chicago he found himself a prisoner on a ranch which he said was owned by "powerful New York

RESOLUTION IS DEFEATED BY 3 VOTES

Lame Duck Congressmen Put in Decisive Blow for Dry Forces

BEER BILL IS UP NEXT

Vice - President - Elect Makes Vote Possible—Cuts Red Tape

Washington, Dec. 5.—(AP)—By a margin so narrow that a change of six votes would have shifted the result, the House of Representatives today defeated the Garner prohibition repeal resolution.

The vote was 271 in its favor to 144 against.

A two-thirds vote was needed to approve the resolution since it was for amendment of the constitution.

"Two-thirds not having voted the resolution is lost," gravely announced Garner, once the count was completed.

The text of the Garner prohibition repeal resolution follows:

"Joint resolution proposing amendment to the constitution to repeal the eighteenth amendment.

"Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled (two thirds of each House concurring therein), that the following article is proposed as an amendment to the constitution when ratified by conventions in three-fourths of the several states.

"Article 1. The eighteenth article of amendment is hereby repealed.

"Section 2. This article shall be inoperative unless it shall have been ratified as an amendment to the constitution by conventions in three-fourths of the several states within seven years from the date of its submission to the states by the Congress."

Cheers from drowsy greeted him, while proponents of the proposal evinced their disappointment in depressed expressions.

Many "lame-ducks", representatives defeated for re-election opposed the resolution.

Of the 22 Ohio Congressmen, eight democrats and eight Republicans voted for the measure, one Democrat and one Republican against, with vote of four others not yet checked.

The action by the House virtually spells the death knell for prohibition repeal in that branch during the short session.

Speaker Garner indicated that it would go over to the new Democratic Congress, which is pledged to the platform.

Nevertheless, the Democratic leadership plans to go ahead with its program to legalize beer for the purpose of imposing a tax.

The vice president-elect was severely scored by drabs during the forty minutes of debate for invocation.

HUNGER MARCH IS STOPPED BY CAPITAL POLICE FORCE

OHIO LEGISLATIVE PROGRAM LIKELY TO BE CRAMPED BY INTERNAL DEMOCRATIC FUSS

Attempts of Governor White and Henry G. Brunner to Dictate Create Split in Party—John P. Maynard Will Probably Lose His Post as Clerk of House

Columbus, O., Dec. 5.—(AP)—Administration attempts to control the 90th Ohio General Assembly organization may impair the administrative legislative program after the session begins next January 2.

Governor George White and State Democratic Chairman Henry G. Brunner already have told the heavily Democratic House of Representatives that they will support Frank Cave of Mansfield, the oldest Democrat in point of continuous service for the speakership.

J. Freer Bittinger, of Ashland, Democratic minority leader in the 89th assembly, will contest the governor's choice in the caucus of House Democrats called next Thursday. Representatives Clarence Burk of Huron county and William Roberts of Belmont county, who were candidates for the speakership, have made no indication of their attitude on the governor's plan.

Should Bittinger, Burke and Roberts pool their support behind a single candidate they are conceded by political observers a good chance of overriding the administration preference when the 84th Democratic members-elect meet.

The Governor and Brunner, after several conferences, failed to pick a candidate for president pro tem of the House, which carries with it the majority leadership. The Governor will return soon from a hunting trip in Pennsylvania and probably will name a choice for the job before the Thursday caucus.

Bittinger, Burke, Roberts, Hugh Addison, of Columbus, and Herbert Baker, of Cincinnati, are reported under consideration for the office.

Democratic observers expect Dwight Matchette, of Greenville, civil service examiner for the Highway Department, to receive unanimous support of the Democratic delegation for clerk of the House. Virtually assured of election, Matchette will succeed John P. Maynard, of Lima and Columbus, who has held the post many years under Republican control.

Should dissension result from the administration participation in the Democratic House caucus, it is believed possible by some observers, that part of the program to be submitted by the chief executive may meet some opposition from his own party.

Thus far the administration has been wary about the Senate organization, where the Democrats and Republicans have 16 votes each. Senate Republicans have indicated their willingness to give the Democrats the president pro tem office, but have indicated they had hopes of garnering enough Democratic votes to assure the reelection of Thomas E. Bateman, of Piketon, a Republican, to the clerkship.

It was understood that the Democratic organization, headed by Brunner, was seeking the entire leadership of the Senate by virtue of the constitutional provision permitting the lieutenant governor to vote in case of a tie. Lieut. Gov. Wields the gavel for the opening William G. Pickrel, of Dayton, who week before giving way to Lieut. Gov.-elect Charles Sawyer of Cincinnati, has the deciding vote in organization. Both Pickrel and Sawyer are Democrats.

Pickrel could be denied a vote should either a Republican or a Democrat not be present.

Demonstrators Carrying Red Banners Repulsed as They Jeer the Law

COLD, HUNGRY, TIRED

Vice-President Says He Will See Delegation

Washington, Dec. 5.—(AP)—Several hundred of the demonstrators corralled by police marched in line toward the guarding forces this morning, as though intending to make a break for the city, but they quickly turned back.

It was the first concerted movement of the morning, and followed quite a bit of grumbling among the marchers over lateness of breakfast and having to sleep in trucks and on the street.

Carrying a long red banner on which there was no writing, the column marched toward the police line nearest the city. The police were immediately alert, but on almost reaching them the column wheeled and jeered at police for their action in tightening their ranks.

On a hill overlooking the scene in the northeast railroad yard section of New York Avenue extended, other police stood armed with tear gas bombs.

The make more sure of their position, police on the street stretched a heavy rope across it.

The demonstrators retaliated by drawing a chalk line about 100 feet back of it toward their trucks. Over the chalk line in large letters their leaders wrote:

"Comrades stick by your trucks."

Individuals who exhibited funds were permitted to go to a nearby market to purchase food, pending the arrival of a food truck from an uptown storehouse of the demonstrators.

Because of the possibility that the demonstrators might march on the capitol, the building was closed to the general public.

Sight-seeing companies were told they could not show crowds through the capitol as usual.

Policemen kept clear the center of the big plaza on the east side of the capitol and were ordered to keep it clear through tomorrow.

Vice President Curtis said today he would receive a delegation of not to exceed three members from the demonstrators gathered here.

CORRALLED BY POLICE.

Red-eyed, cold and cramped from a night spent in their trucks and automobiles approximately 2,500 demonstrators today looked hopefully to court action for an avenue of escape from the police cordon surrounding them on Washington's outskirts.

On three sides strong lines of blue coats hemmed them in, blocking their way to the nation's capitol to which they had made plans for a protest march to demand relief from Congress.

It was this police action which members of the league of professional groups denounced in saying they had retained attorneys to seek an injunction in the District of Columbia Supreme court to prevent authorities from interfering with the "constitutional" right of the visitors to "peacefully assemble" and petition Congress.

The marchers complained bitterly of their treatment but agreed they were as helpless before police strategy as mice before a cat.

Vociferous at first, the eastern delegation, first to arrive, accepted the situation as it watched police reinforcements grow and saw among them squads armed with tear gas of a type which produces violent nausea. Even the later arrivals of a large western contingent and a smaller group caused only a few scattered cheers.

Following the Christmas play which will be given by the pupils of Mrs. Loreah O'Brian's fourth grade under the direction of Miss Irene Tobin, the gifts which adorn the beautifully decorated Christmas tree will be sold to the highest bidder. It has been asked that these gifts be donated by the children and patrons of the school. The money will be used to replenish the treasury. Christmas candies will also be on sale.

In order that the children may attend, the date of the meeting has been changed to Friday of next week.

LAST HITCHING POST FINALLY REMOVED

The last vestige of ancient civilization disappeared when the hitching post in front of the high school was removed Wednesday. This post has stood for many years and many horses have been tied here but now the antiquated thing has passed out of existence. In years gone by country students came for their education by horse and shay which made a post or so necessary but since they are whisked in by truck or drive their own automobile, it is no longer necessary for "old Dobbin" to freeze in the cold or sweat in the hot sun.

INSPECTOR VISITS SCHOOLS

R. A. Spengler, state inspector, visited the schools Wednesday to look over the work which has been done on the buildings during the past several months. He was very much delighted with the improvements made in the last year. Mr. Spengler, who is a representative of rehabilitation department, has made several trips to the city in the past few months to keep in contact with the work as it progressed. Mr. Spengler makes inspections wherever state money is used for improvement work. He is anxious to see improvement work continue and already plans are being worked out to this end.

FRENCH CLUB MEETING

Electing the officers and setting a definite time for the meetings of the French Club was planned Tuesday evening after school. This was mostly a business meeting. The following students were elected: George Baker, president; Frederick Woolard, treasurer; Billy Junk, chairman of program committee; Jean Inskeep, vice president; Doris Massmore, secretary. This club will meet the second Wednesday of every month.

GRADE CARDS

All students in the city are very downcast. The same old cause—grade cards come out Wednesday. As usual, some have descended and, of course, some grades have arisen. Students will take notice that they have only one more term in which to prepare for the mid-year examinations which will come in January.

The sleepy looks on the students' faces last week were a result of the six weeks' tests.

CENTRAL NEWS

The eighth grade Thanksgiving chapel program was postponed until Thursday morning, December 1, because it was impossible to secure the high school auditorium the previous week.

The program opened with the group song, "Come Thou Almighty King," followed by scripture reading and the Lord's prayer. Harry Townsley, accompanied by Jean Buchanan, played well a violin solo. Miss Tobin's dramatic art pupils presented the remainder of the program, "Thanksgiving Long Ago," by Ellen Hays, Patricia Osborn, Myra Wilson, and Betty Browne, gave the origin and history of Thanksgiving. The different types of transportation were studied in the text, and appropriate pictures for study were selected from the Keystone News. Pictures were cut from magazines and newspapers to make booklets. The pictures were arranged in the booklet under the following headings: 1. Transportation in the City. 2. Transportation in the Country. 3. Transportation by Rail. 4. Transportation Through the Air. 5. Transportation by Water. 6. Aids to Commerce.

NIGHT SCHOOL

On Thursday, the twenty-second of December from 7 to 8 o'clock a night school will be held in order to let the parents of W. H. S. students know just what goes on in the different courses. The first two classes of the day will be held that night but that does not mean they will be omitted during the morning as the periods at night are only a repetition.

By getting the room number and the name of the course they wish to visit from the office or from students the visitors should have no trouble finding their way about the building. Students will be located in the halls to assist them.

At eight o'clock the Christmas Chapel play "Why The Chimes Rang" will be given in the auditorium for the benefit of the visitors. The students are asked not to remain for the play that night unless they are unable to make other plans since as much room as possible should be reserved for the guests. The student body will have the opportunity of seeing the play on Friday at the regular chapel hour.

CAROL SINGING

The pupils of Rose Avenue school have been chosen to sing Christmas carols on Wednesday evening, December 21, at the Presbyterian Church. All pupils attending Rose Avenue school will take part in singing the carols. The regular Christmas program will be omitted.

SENIORS REMEMBER FRIEND COACHES

Coach Maurer and Cramer were each presented with a five dollar gold piece at the football banquet by the then senior boys leaving the squad this year. This token expressed the gratitude and appreciation the boys feel for the coaches. Maurer and Cramer have shown a spirit of good sportsmanship in their teaching of football, have shown a feeling of good fellowship with the boys, have had patience on the practice field, and have given the boys something to be proud of by turning out a winning team this season.

MICKEY MOUSE

The interest in the Mickey Mouse Marionettes promises to require an additional show for all who desire to see it. For the overflow there will probably be an extra performance at 4 P. M. In such a case the time will be announced so that all those who care to will be able to come.

In addition to Mickey Mouse the Hestwood Marionettes will offer some other selections which will prove attractive to everyone, both young and old enjoying the performances.

The Mickey Mouse performance will be the first to use the new curtain. This will give the performance a proper set off.

LECTURES TO BE GIVEN

A series of lectures for high school students is to be given by Dr. Dean C. Dutton, formerly of the University of Oklahoma, on Monday, Tuesday, Thursday, and Friday of this week.

All of the lectures will be given at 12:45 p. m., with the exception of the one on Tuesday which will be at 8:30 a. m. The morning and afternoon periods of Tuesday will be interchanged so the extra curricular period will come the first thing in the morning. This change will enable Dr. Dutton to address the Rotary Club.

These lectures are sponsored by the Rotary Club, Ministerial Association, and the public schools.

This question is, Resolved: "That approximately one-half of all local and state revenue should be derived from sources other than tangible property."

The debate will be broadcast from station W. L. W.

NEW MAPS PURCHASED

The boys and girls of the high school and elementary schools as well as are greatly enjoying a series of maps for history and geography which have recently been placed in the rooms of the buildings in the city. Beautiful maps and splendidly illustrative books on the subjects of history and geography are always exceedingly valuable. There has been a shortage for a great many years but this has been gradually overcome until at this time the schools are creditably equipped with desirable teaching aids.

Political maps, relief maps, globes, maps for the study of French and Spanish, and outline maps are finding their way into the classroom where teachers may have easy access to them.

PEACE CONTEST HELD SUNDAY

Keith Garringer Wins
Honor for This County

Keith Garringer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Garringer, of Bloomingburg, won the Fayette County Prince of Peace contest, the finals of which were held in Grace M. E. Church Sunday night with two contestants participating. Miss Margaret Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Smith, of Jeffersonville, being the other participant.

"The Prince of Peace" was the theme of Miss Smith's oration, and "The Dardanelles" formed the title of Garringer's oration.

The judges were J. L. Cadwallader, Mrs. D. H. Rowe and Dwight B. Ireland, the medal being presented by the latter after the judges had reached their decision. In making the award, the judges found only a small difference of points in favor of Keith Garringer, who will take part in the congressional district contest to be held at Springfield in the near future. Those taking part in the Prince of Peace contests are graded on general effect, faulty memory, voice and articulation and state presence.

While the judges were arriving at their decision, Rev. A. K. Wilson, pastor of the church, spoke briefly on world peace and what was being done and not being done to promote peace among the nations of the world. He spoke of the tremendous amounts being expended yearly by leading nations of the world to keep their war machines in readiness.

A musical feature of the program was a solo by Henry Hoppes, who possesses a voice of exceptional smoothness and power that is winning for him a place among the leading singers in the city.

POMONA GRANGE ELECTS OFFICERS

AT REGULAR SESSION

The Fayette County Pomona Grange, as its regularly quarterly meeting adopted two resolutions which will be sent to the State Grange meeting next week with the county grange delegate, Harold Mark.

The same officers were elected for the coming year with the exception of the Secretary. Mrs. W. W. Montgomery was elected Secretary in the place of Miss Ruth Nisley. Ralph Nisley is master and Ora Allen, overseer.

Following are the resolutions: "Be it resolved, that the State Grange in its regular meeting at Springfield, Ohio, December 12, 13, 14, 1932, be asked to spend its efforts toward the following:

"1st—The securing of proper and sufficient legislation whereby farmers may purchase and administer serum and virus for treating their own hogs against cholera.

"2nd—We endorse the policy that education is primarily a responsibility of the state. We therefore urge such change in our equalization laws as will provide: (1) That the state assume a greater share of the basic operating costs of schools rather than the local districts, as at present. (2) That the state derive its revenue from other sources than direct property tax, such as an earned income tax, and selective sales taxes. (3) That the principle of home rule be maintained. (4) That supplementary legislation be enacted so as to guarantee that any saving due to transfer of school costs to other sources be reflected in lower real estate taxes."

MECHANICAL BOY HAMMERS CRYSTAL

A mechanical boy nearly life size and sitting in the window of the Office T. Stookey jewelry store in North Fayette street, constantly hammers away at a match crystal which is to withstand two weeks of hammering to demonstrate its unbreakableness. The crystal is known as "G. ## SEDALIA HAS $3,000 BLAZE

Postoffice Among Business Rooms Destroyed

Sedalia, Dec. 5.—(Spcl)—This village was early Sunday morning visited by the worst fire it has experienced since the township house was destroyed a number of years ago, when fire, breaking out in the T. M. Richardson restaurant on the east side of Main street in the center of town, spread to the room occupied by the Postoffice, the Omar Mason barber shop and Caldwell Adkins Fairmont cream station, completely destroyed the buildings and most of their contents, causing a total loss of approximately $3,000, partly covered by insurance.

The two properties destroyed, one-story frame structures, were owned by David Moore and Mrs. Chas. Kellough. Part of the mail in the postoffice was destroyed with the buildings and fixtures.

The fire was discovered shortly after midnight, having broken out in the restaurant from an undetermined cause. Whipped by a stiff breeze the fire spread rapidly, and cars were put in for the Bloomingburg pumper and the London fire department. The truck from Bloomingburg and one from the London prison farm reached the scene at the same time, but the fire had destroyed the frame structures had been prevented from reaching adjacent property by the good work of a bucket brigade hastily formed by residents of the town. A residence property nearby was badly scorched.

All windows in the front of the Hewitt store on the opposite side of the street were broken by the intense heat.

Policy to Be Adopted by Russia Has Bearing on Peace in Far East

Tokyo, Dec. 5.—(A)—The Japanese army pushed to a point within 75 miles of the Soviet border in Manchuria today in its campaign against insurgent Chinese, a situation which gave the government pause as to the attitude of Moscow.

Tokyo officialdom concentrated on Russo-Japanese relations, especially in light of the fact that the Japanese troops might push on to Manchuli, the Manchurian border city.

The foreign office disclosed that Elji Amoh, the Japanese Charge d'Affaires at Moscow had approached the foreign commissar of Russia, L. M. Karakhan, as to the circumstances of the campaign.

The Charge told M. Karakhan, that it was necessary for the Japanese army to attack the Chinese insurgent, Gen. Su Ping-Wen, who has been holding one-fourth of Northwestern Manchuria in defiance of the Japanese army, and has been keeping more than 100 Japanese as hostages.

The Japanese charge also advised Russia it would be necessary to use the western division of the Chinese eastern railway over which Russia has partial authority. The Russian Commissar was also advised the Japanese policy was as previously outlined, I. E. not to injure the Chinese Eastern if possible, and repair all damage resulting from Japanese operation.

M. Karakhan advised M. Amoh that he wished time to consult the Moscow government before discussing the situation further.

Today the government lacked information as to Moscow's intentions in the event general Si Ping Wen and his followers should attempt to flee into Siberia.

CHOIR PLEASES BIG AUDIENCE

Greenfield Church Filled for Vesper Concert

The First Presbyterian church of Greenfield was filled with a highly appreciative audience, Sunday afternoon, for the vesper concert given by the big vested choir from this city under the direction of Ralph Lloyd, and for the second time in two weeks the organization composed of the combined choirs of the four leading Protestant churches of this city, acquitted itself with distinct honors and was showered with words of praise.

The audience, the largest gathered at the church in many a day, including scores from this city and county, a large number from Greenfield proper, and many from Leesburg, Hillsboro, Chillicothe, Frankfort, Bainbridge and other surrounding points, all anxious to hear the big chorus which, sponsored by the Cecilian Music Club, two weeks ago attracted one of the largest crowds Grace church ever held.

The choir appeared at Greenfield with only three less members than took part in the notable concert given in this city, with Miss Marian Christopher at the organ. Miss Christopher also played the postlude at the conclusion of the concert.

Ralph Lloyd, director of the choir, was praised for his fine work in directing the more than three score singers at all times responding to every call made upon them, and showing the excellent training they had undergone, the splendid harmony, coloring and intonation generally being a genuine pleasure to the 700 persons composing the audience.

The choir appeared at Greenfield upon invitation of Ralph Price, director of music of the First Presbyterian church there, and who played the prelude and offertory for the vesper services. Rev. William B. Kilpatrick, pastor of the church, presiding, and expressed to the choir the deep appreciation of the church for the splendid concert given, and for the inspiration it brought to the church.

FAYETTE THRONED FOR "PROSPERITY"

The Fayette Theater was filled Sunday afternoon, with a waiting line outside, for the continuous showing of the outstanding photo play, of "Prosperity" from one o'clock in the afternoon till the last show at nine o'clock. The clever show, with its popular stars and hilarious situations, sent the big crowds out in the best possible humor.

Give Marie Dressler and Polly Moran something to fight about—and watch the laughs roll up.

They're at it again—this time as mothers-in-law battling over the lives of their married children, in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Prosperity," now showing at the Fayette Theater.

The heroines of "Caught Short" and "Politics" have as many battles as of yore, but the battles are louder and funnier. Then, too, there is a dramatic twist in the new story, and Marie does some straight character acting that tugs at the heartstrings.

The story deals with two widows who are friends. In a small town until their children get married. Each starts in to regulate the new family—and fur flies. Polly goes broke, there is a run on the bank. Marie gets a job in a grocery store and figures out a way to put it on a paying basis by "trading" and "swapping," their battles cause the youngsters to get a divorce—and then everything crashes. Marie sacrifices herself and is planning to end her life for the insurance money when Sonny comes home with the profits of a big deal. All ends happily.

There are howling incidentals like the battle of the three rival Santa Clauses, the hilarious adventure in the grocery store, the comical battle that disrupts the wedding, and a tense, gripping dramatic scene. Sam Wood directed the production.

Anita Page and Norman Foster are ideally cast as the young couple, and the children are played by little Jacquie Lyn and Jerry Tucker. Charles Giblyn, Frank Darien and Henry Armetta contribute clever character comedy.

Congress Convenes

The present session promises to be historic in that it probably will be the last "lame duck" session of Congress ever to be held.

It is regarded as probable that the present session will provide that there shall be no more, like it, made up of many members defeated in the last election and who will have no official connection with governmental affairs beyond the present session.

It seems clear now at a time when so many economic problems at home and abroad, are pressing for solution, when so many grave crises are faced, that, long ago, we should have made provisions for the earlier induction into office of newly elected executive and legislators. For four months following elections we must wait for a definite policy to be announced and put into effect.

In the days when the saddle horses and stage coaches formed our transportation facilities, when the pony express was the fast mail and mud roads and forest trails the only highways, it was probably wise to allow sufficient time for newly elected officials to reach the national capital. In these days of the railroads and the airplanes, of the telegraph, the telephone and the radio, when the whole world has become such a small place, when one can cross the continent in twelve hours, when the far places of the earth are in constant communication and no nation is now beyond speaking distance, it does not require four months to change our official personnel.

Momentous developments and changes can occur in four months' time. The world and its people move swiftly these days and governments should be made to keep pace with the needs of the people who have set them up.

Many observers are expressing the opinion that the incoming administration desires to avoid an extra session of the newly elected Congress and are almost equally desirous that the present session of Congress clear up all unfinished business.

There are too many tremendously important problems for the outgoing session of Congress to solve even if it knew what the policies of the incoming administration would be and were in sympathy with those policies.

Foreign debts, budget balancing, cutting expenses, reducing taxes, reforming the currency system, providing for new banking laws, tariff schedule readjustments, prohibition, unemployment, railroads and farm legislation are but a few of the outstanding problems that must be met and solved.

It seems impossible that, working in the dark, without chart of the new administration's course, the tasks which confront this short session of Congress are too overwhelmingly numerous, complicated and vital in their effect to be disposed of within the short span of four months.

Too many people have been taught to fear the sessions of Congress will effect business unfavorably. That's a mistake. Congress, especially the House, is, perhaps, nearer to the people than any other part of the federal government.

Not a Social Lion

The most distinctive activities of a vice president are social. He is expected to grace numerous banquet tables and to attend equally numerous balls and receptions. Mr. Curtis has met those requirements well. He is a good "diner out" and does not seem to mind the heavy round of social functions.

Mr. Garner is of another type. He is no social lion and makes no bones about saying so. Precedent or no precedent, he has announced that he will decline all invitations except to events at the White House, where, as vice president, his presence is required.

More than precedent is involved. The vice president is the president's substitute at such functions, and to that extent lightens his burdens. With Mr. Garner determined that nothing shall interfere with his habit of retiring early and his practice of shunning the festive board, a new emergency will arise after March four. Mr. Roosevelt may have to appoint an official social representative, who would of necessity be more real than Mr. Coolidge's official spokesman.

LOBBYISTS FACING DISMAL PROSPECTS

Change of Parties Leaves Army of National Capital's "Fixers" in Bad State of Depression

By CHARLES P. STEWART

Washington, Dec. 5.—Congress returns to Washington to find the capital's great lobbying industry in the worst state of depression it has known in 20 years.

"Fixers", dependent for prosperity (and a very liberal allowance of it for the highly successful ones) on their influence with officials who will retire with the change in administrations three months hence, hardly can be expected to regard the future optimistically.

The turn-over at the end of the Wilson regime did not matter much. Immediately post-war confusion reigned. A kind of grab-bag system still prevailed—and the grabbing was easy and good.

The "fixers" calling has been vastly developed since then.

Or perhaps it would be more correct to say that it has been restored to something like what it was before he war. It took skill and "connections" in those days and it does now.

The dislocation of contacts and relationships when the Wilson administration succeeded President Taft's is so far in the past that it is recalled by few individuals in or associated with official Washington of the present. In proportion (for everything was on a small scale in the century's early teens, compared with the 1930's) quite likely it was as violent as next March's is certain to be.

There unquestionably was plenty of "fixing" done during President Taft's administration.

And, by the way, there is a technical distinction between lobbying and "fixing." They overlap, but strictly speaking, the lobbyist operates, as the term indicates, in the congressional lobbies, doing his best to shape legislation, while his "fixers" function is to work his "pull" in the seclusion of executive offices (or even higher up, if he is in sufficient standing), attending to matters that can best be handled confidentially.

Oh, undoubtedly there was "fixing" done under President Taft. In fact, it was one of the things that the late Colonel Roosevelt complained of, in running for the White House as a Bull Moose, defeating his old friend and giving the victory to Woodrow Wilson.

The complete cleaning out of a whole set of the government's premier officials in favor of an entirely new set, as in the case of a switch between the parties in power naturally, leaves the retiring set's galaxy of attendant "fixers" utterly at a loose end—no "pulls" with members of the new set, no intimate acquaintanceships, no anything.

Before a new coterie of "fixers" had time to attain maximum efficiency under President Wilson the war was on. Even prior to America's entrance into it, "fixing" had begun to lapse into chaos.

Upon Uncle Sam's declaration of hostilities, a perfect saturnalia of self-helpfulness ensued, as will be remembered, during which no one who wanted, anything took the slightest trouble to hire a "fixer" to get it for him, but personally picked it up, without ceremony, and made off with it.

Not until President Harding had been duly installed did scientific "fixing" come into its own again.

It was somewhat crass, at that, for awhile.

Gradually, however, as the oil investigation, the power "probe" and other inquiries more and more called attention to these crudities, the profession progressively refined itself until, under the Hoover administrations, the smallish group of the capital's first rate "fixers" have classed, among the most influential and respected and decidedly the best paid folk in Washington. The "pikers", of course, are of less consequence, but they have made fair livings.

Straight lobbying is not affected. The farmers', the labor and the veterans' lobbies, for example, are non-partisan anyway.

The United States Chamber of Commerce, which has pushed its Republican membership to the fore throughout the last 12 years, now will relegate the G. O. P. contingent to the rear and shove its Democratic element to the front.

Most of the current generation of free lance "fixers", however, will join the unemployed after March 4. The aristocracy of the profession can afford a vacation, to be sure. The smaller fry look forward with dread even to a four-year furlough.

High Spots In Ohio History

When John S. Rarey the noted horse tamer of Groveport, O., returned from his triumphant tour of Europe, where he was called upon to prove the efficiency of his methods of subduing the worst of horses, he brought with him Cruiser, noted stallion who had not been out of his stall for three years, before he set foot on Rarey's Franklin county farm. He also brought a mare and several shetland ponies.

When Rarey had tamed Cruiser, Lord Dorchester who was part owner of the animal gave his interest in the animal to Rarey who then purchased the other half interest.

What became of Cruiser? Rarey died in Cleveland, and was buried in Groveport in 1866. He made ample provision for the horse which outlived him by nine years. From fees, gifts, gratuities and lecture receipts, Rarey brought back from Europe what was a comfortable fortune for his declining days. He continued to enjoy a large income and spent his declining days developing his Groveport farm.

Poetry For Today

FRAGRANCES

Sing me no fragrances of country-sides,
Of new-mown hay laid drying in the sun,
Of fern-banked hills, the nook where bashful hides
The scented columbine, nor any one
Of nature's fascinating odors spilled
From chalices of gossamer, wind spun,
Into uncloying essence, thrice distilled;
Cite me no memories of conquests won
Upon the art of heady earthy tangs
Mysteriously ensconced in ambergris;

If you would stir my heart with savory pangs
Speak of the faint perfume of hair blown free
From a beloved brow, and add but this,
A cheek's soft fragrance rising toward a kiss.

—ALEX MAURITZ RUSSEL, in the Philadelphia Inquirer.

Officers arrived at the house before Johnson was harmed, however. The woman was wounded in the legs by a shotgun charge. Officers said the shooting resulted from from a family feud.

A NEW YORKER LARGE

By MARK BARRON

NEW YORK—The passing of Jimmy Walker from the metropolitan scene somehow makes New York appear as a thrilling drama with its chief actor missing.

Whatever Walker's faults or merits as a governing executive, there is no doubt but that his strikingly individual personality was as much a part of Manhattan as is Broadway, the Bowery or the skyline.

When, his political career apparently over, he sailed for India, he took away much of the color and excitement which has enthralled this city for the last seven years.

I think that if one could assemble a composite typical New Yorker, that such a man would be almost identical to Walker. His flair for smart, slightly flamboyant clothes; his adeptness for a witty retort; his liking for night life and a good time; his avoidance of heavy, too serious things; his personal charm—these are the things that made him the matinee idol of New York's daily life.

AN UNHAPPY JIMMY

During those several final weeks of the political campaign, Walker was an unhappy man. He seemed to look upon those years when he was mayor as a closed episode in his life. He moved to a new apartment, vacating his old one which was associated with so many old memories. The only belongings he carried to his new home were a dining room suite, a grand piano and his priceless collection of autographed pictures of celebrities.

He lived in his new home little more than a fortnight when he vacated it, too, and tried to sail secretly.

He has given no hint as to what his future career will be. He has been offered $250,000 to appear in a motion picture based on his life. A magazine offered him $50,000 for six articles. There have been two radio offers, and one newspaper wants him as a columnist. There are no unemployment worries for Walker.

When he resigned as mayor he hinted that he would be a candidate again. But this seems unlikely now. Tammany made no efforts to use him in the recent campaign, and Tammany has too many headaches of its own now. The Tiger and Walker seem to have gone their separate ways, and it is extremely unlikely that Walker would attempt to be an independent candidate.

'FORGOTTEN MAN'

The most amazing fact in the whole picture was the speed with which Walker was shunted out of the public view. Motion pictures, plays and books about his career were being prepared by the dozen but they all faded when he resigned.

They're calling Walker the real "forgotten man" and I have an idea that he wants to be—for the present.

More rain fell in St. Louis in one day of this August than normally falls in the whole month.

The celebration will be an informal and happy one.

Mr. John M. Kildow, out door feature story writer, who has been spending the summer with his sister, Mrs. George W. Rhoads, leaves Tuesday for St. Petersburg, Fla., to cover winter fishing interest for "The Hunter, Trader, Trapper" magazine. Mr. Kildow has a story in the December number of "The Hunter, Trader, Trapper." He gave out the information locally that he writes under the name of John Mason Bellaire. His recent experiences in Alaska have furnished exceptionally interesting stories.

Mr. Kildow is in receipt of a letter from the well known writer, Hal G. Everts, and a personal friend, upon the return of Mr. Everts and his son from four months in Australia, Papua and New Guinea, which gave out information of much interest concerning the most unique gold field in the world, in interior of Guinea, the least explored region of the world and inhabited entirely by cannibals.

Mr. Everts says The New Guinea trip was a "wow." Its the biggest island in the world (about 12 times the size of Ohio) except Greenland, and entirely unexplored.

In flying over it hundreds of villages can be seen in the mountains below. The mountains are high, with terrific sheer drops between. There is one natural landing in the interior and gold was located there.

Mr. Kildow has made friends in number during his summer residence here and his magazine stories during the winter will be of local interest.

Mr. and Mrs. William Lucas, whose birthdays occurred Saturday and Sunday, were given a happy surprise, Sunday, by relatives and friends who assembled with generously filled baskets for a noon dinner. ## Contract Bridge

By E. V. SHEPARD

A POSTMORTEM

You know how it is. If the opening lead happens to give the declarer his contract, particularly if that is a heavy one, almost surely some player will inform the leader how some other opening would have beaten the hand. The hand below was the subject for such a postmortem. Would any opening lead have prevented Z's small slam at hearts?

♠ A Q J 10 3
♦ None
♣ A K 9 8 7 4 3

♦ J 10 9
♣ 8 7 3 2

♠ Q J 10
♥ 7
♦ None
♣ A K 9 8 7 4 3

♠ K
♥ A K J 10 5 2
♦ A 5 4
♣ 6 5 2

The bidding was lively. It went: Z, 1-Heart; A, 2-Clubs (just a nuisance bid); Y, 3-Diamonds, to force Z's response; Z, 3-Hearts, Y, 3-Spades; Z, 4-Hearts; Y, 4-Spades; Z, 5-Hearts; Y, 6-Diamonds; Z, 6-Hearts. That stood and was doubled by B, without a redouble.

The opening lead was the 6 of Spades. To take a finesse in hearts, the ace won the trick. The 7 of hearts was led, covered with B's 8, and the 10 won. The ace and K failed to capture the missing Q, and Z led a diamond. B's last heart trumped, but that was the last trick taken by his side. When he led a club the declarer's ace won the trick. He led another diamond. Then upon the Q-J-10 of spades Z discarded his two remaining clubs and his last diamond, just fulfilling his small slam contract.

To determine whether or not the contract could have been defeated, next try leading a heart. The declarer can take the same finesse that he did when he led the 7 from dummy, and he must lose one heart trick. Nothing can prevent that, unless B crazily puts up his Q on the first lead. The remainder of the hand may be played without losing a trick. The trump opening will give Z his contract.

Suppose A makes a normal opening lead of his J of clubs. That lead looks promising. If Z lets the J run to his ace, he will have to lose one trump trick and one club trick, unless he is very careful. He still will make a slam in either of two ways, if careful. First, the declarer may let dummy ruff the club. Then Z can lead a spade, win the trick with his lone K, and lead two rounds of top trumps. Failing to drop the Q, the declarer must lead his J of trumps. The Q will win, and a club return will be won with the declarer's ace. Z must then pick up B's last trump. Dummy's established spades and two high diamonds will prevent the loss of a second trick.

If the declarer chooses, he may win the club lead with his ace. Lay down his Ace and K of hearts, picking up both of A's trumps. Z then can lead his K of spades, overtake with dummy's ace, and discard his two losing clubs and one diamond loser on dummy's good spades. Z can ruff dummy's last spade. Z then must lead his J of hearts, to force B to win his one trump trick. Z will ruff a club return lead, and pick up B's last heart.

If a diamond is the opening lead B will trump the trick. Whatever B leads back will be won by the declarer or dummy. A spade lead will put dummy in. The single heart led from dummy will enable the declarer to finesse, and thus pick up all three hearts left to B.

Against any opening lead Z need lost only the single heart trick and that cannot be avoided.

LARGE ASSEMBLAGE JOINS WITH ELKS IN BEAUTIFUL
MEMORIAL

The club room of the B. P. O. E. No. 129 was filled with members of the order, relatives and friends for the annual Lodge of Sorrow, Sunday afternoon. Immense baskets of chrysanthemums added to the beauty of the club rooms.

The ceremonies were of deep impressiveness and solemnity, conducted by Exalted Ruler, Heber Roe. Secretary, Clayton V. Lanum, read the roll call of those members for whom the lodge assembled in sorrow. Dr. Roy E. Brown and Gerrie Spragg were two members who had answered the higher roll call during the past year, and whose deaths had deeply saddened their fellow Elks. Charles Butters, although he had been a member of Waco Lodge, Texas, was also remembered by the local Elks.

Judge Harry M. Rankin delivered the address of the afternoon, a beautiful tribute to those who had crossed the bar.

Exceptionally fine music added to the inspiration of the services. Mr. Belford Carpenter was the tenor soloist, his beautiful voice sympathetic and appealing and Mr. James Kneisley, violin soloist, played exquisitely. Mr. James Whelpley was an admirable accompanist.

Warner to Resign as Head Football Coach at Stanford To Take Position at Temple University, Says Report

PADDY MACK

WANTS RETURN RASSL'

With Alaskan Bulldog in Washington C. H.—Promises to Give Him Lesson

JACKSON IS EVASIVE

Local Boy on Fight Card for Coming Show

Paddy Mack, sensational protege of John Pesek, who although winner by foul over the rugged Bulldog Jackson of Alaska on last week's card, requested of Tim Nolan, Queensbury Club president, that he be given a return bout with his Klondike opponent. He feels that he can take the measure of the rough and tumble Jackson with straight mat tactics.

"If Tim Nolan can get Jackson to agree to a second match before Washington C. H. fans I will give him the wrestling lesson of his life. I may have been declared the winner in the first bout but regardless of that fact I want fans to know one thing—I do not win my matches on fouls nor do I use foul tactics but if Jackson agrees to meet me again I'll give him the last lesson first and I'll meet him for money, marbles or chalk."

At present Nolan has been unable to sign the burly Alaskan since Jackson is demanding a purse that is far out of reasoning.

"I beat him once anyway—why do it again," was Jackson's gruff statement when approached by Nolan. "Why I would have got the decision if it hadn't been for that tramp referee that was in there. Get me the referee, will you, but if you insist on Mack—then hand me a guarantee."

Nolan, however, hopes to yet sign the Klondike Kuffer for a Mack bout and is going ahead with the rest of his Big League card which will be presented Wednesday night at the Armory.

"Singer" Max Martin, former football and basketball star with the Greenfield Merchants and who has been making rapid strides in the heavyweight mat picture, will clash with Jimmy Achlin, 200 pounder from Tennessee, in the one fall, 30 minute semi-final.

Two local boys will be featured in the two six-round boxing bouts against a pair of classy out-of-town opponents. Billy Nance of Madison Mills meets Chick Howard of Lancaster. Both are clever and stiff-punching 130 pounders and should provide fans with plenty of action.

Buzzard Southard, hard-hitting local middleweight takes on the hard punching Pittsburgh Panther, Marty Hogan. It will be a tough assignment for the Washington C. H. wallpaper for Hogan will have a decided advantage in experience since the Smokey City puncher has had over 100 ring battles.

H. quintet jumped into the lead in the opening game and retained it throughout all three tilts.

The Buckeye Coal and Lumber Company of Chillicothe defeated McKinney's All Stars but only with a margin of 36 pins. Wolcott was the only bowler to go above the 600 mark when he rolled 603.

The Williams Contractors, a women's team, lost to a fast feminine crew out of Columbus, the Helm Florist. The Columbus quintet has an average for the season that ranks with the leading women teams in Columbus.

Two Tough Teams On Trojan's Path To Grid Honors

FIRST COMES NOTRE DAME AND THEN PITTSBURGH

New York, Dec. 5—(A)—Through Notre Dame and Pittsburgh lies Southern California's path to the mythical National football championship.

Notre Dame at Los Angeles this Saturday, Pittsburgh in the Rose Bowl at Pasadena, January 2, that's a thorny road for any team to travel, but if Howard Jones' Trojans can get through it with out stumbling there will be few to dispute their right to retain the throne they won by force of arms last year.

The current Trojan machine, perhaps lacks some of the offensive power of the All-star 1931 eleven which spotted Notre Dame two touchdowns and then walloped the Ramblers, 16 to 14. But to offset this, it is stronger on the defense. Whether Notre Dame can pierce that sturdy line this week remains to be seen but certainly the Ramblers, on the basis of their magnificently showing against Army, have the weapons to test any defense to the utmost.

Pitt's only chance in figuring in the National title award lies in winning the Rose Bowl game but even then, the Panthers' scoreless ties with Nebraska and Ohio State might well furnish Michigan and Colgate good talking points.

The Rambler-Trojan clash is the only outstanding game on this week's schedule.

RIVAUS HONOR STAGG

Chicago —(A)—Amos Alonzo Stagg, in his 40th year as University of Chicago football coach, has been presented "T" and "P" blankets by alumni varsity-letter clubs of two of his oldest rivals, Purdue and Illinois. ### WORLD CHAMPION BOWLERS DEFEAT LOCAL ALL-STARS

Recreation Hall Alleys Records Shattered in Sunday Exhibitions

Enthusiastic bowling fans and fannettes of Washington C. H. saw two carefully picked local quintets go down in defeat against the Sohio Ethels, the world's champion bowlers Sunday afternoon and evening.

Ray Maynard's All Stars as well as Creamer's team lost by over 200 pins each. Maynard's team rolled the Sohio Ethels in the afternoon. Maynard was the only bowler who held down his man while Tommy Zavakas carried off high score honors with 651.

The world's champs found the 1-3 pocket more frequently in the match with Creamer's picked team. The last match started at 9:00 P. M. Sunday and the Sohio quintet jumped into the lead in the opening frame.

Tommy Zavakas again carried off high score for the match. He was, probably, the most spectacular bowler of the visiting quintet. He throws the ball with terrific speed. His sweeping hook would break into the 1-3 pocket time after time. He rolled 256 for the first game. Then that sensational second game. Four of the five Sohio bowlers topped the 200 mark in this game. A new high water mark for team game was set by the visitors at 1090 in this contest.

Zavakas struck his first frame of the second game. Then the No. 10 pin refused to fall in the second frame. He picked up the spare, however. For the next seven frames he struck. Time after time his ball carried every pin into the pit. Then the last frame he spared. His game score was 259. He fired a 132 score back at the All Stars in the third game giving him a score of 747 for the match. This sensational bowling set a high mark for the entire season with his 747, just 40 pins above the high mark of Creamer.

The quintet set a new high team score with 3082 in the last match. The bowlers all use sweeping curves and Jones was the only All Star bowler to go over the 600 mark in the last match.

SPARTANS WIN AND HEAD FOR THRONE

Of Pro Football League; Least They Can Get Now Is Tie With Chicago

GREEN BAY IS ROUTED

By Portsmouth Attack Through the Air

Portsmouth, O., Dec. 5—(A)—Handed a crushing 19 to 0 defeat by the star studded Portsmouth Spartans, the Green Bay Packers today were definitely out of the running for the National Professional football championship, a title they had won for two successive years.

A dazzling offensive yesterday enabled the Spartans to unseat the powerful Packers, take undisputed possession of first place, and all but clinch the championship.

Only one game—between Green Bay and the Chicago Bears next Sunday—remains on the league schedule. A victory for the Bears who defeated New York 6-0, yesterday, would give them a tie for first place with Portsmouth. If the Packers win, Portsmouth will have its first championship.

Here's how the three leaders line up now:

Team	W	L	T	Pct.
Portsmouth	6	1	4	.850
Bears	5	1	6	.833
Green Bay	10	2	1	.833

In the event of a Bear-Spartan deadlock, the two teams would meet in a playoff on December 18, either at Chicago or Cincinnati.

The result of the vital Pack-Spartan game was a complete surprise. Portsmouth entered the battle on even terms, but no one expected the lopsided score that meant a rout for the Packers.

Playing the full game without substitutions, the Spartans out-kicked and outgeneralized the Packers who staged but one consistent march—and that too late to do any good. Held fairly even on the ground, the locals took to the air to bewilder the visitors, with punting and forward passing playing a big part in the outcome.

The Bears upset the New York Giants 6-0, to retain their chances of trying for the title.

The third game of yesterday's schedule produced a 7-0 victory for the Boston Braves over the Brooklyn Dodgers and sent the Braves into fourth place in the standing.

NO CONFIRMATION OF RUMOR OFTEN HEARD, HOWEVER

Ernie Nevers, Dick Hanley and Andy Kerr Being Considered for Post

San Francisco, Dec. 5—(A)—The Examiner says it has definitely learned Glenn "Pop" Warner will resign this week as head football coach at Stanford University and sign a contract as mentor of football at Temple University, Philadelphia. The change has been frequently rumored, and as frequently denied, and was still without confirmation today.

Questioned about the report this morning, the "Old Fox" said from his Palo Alto home, "I'm not well and I don't want to be bothered about it," and promptly hung up the telephone.

Graduate manager Al Masters of Stanford, who has repeatedly scouted rumors of Warner's impending resignation, reiterated the coach has not resigned.

The examiner, however, said "he has made up his mind," and will sign a contract with the Philadelphia institution for five years or more. He will leave, the newspaper said, for Temple in the spring and will not take any of his present coaching staff with him.

The Examiner says athletic officials of Temple are expecting to receive Warner's signed contract shortly and will pay him a larger salary than he now receives.

The Examiner said Ernie Nevers a Warner product and Stanford assistant coach C. E. "Dick" Thornhill, the line coach, Tink Hanley, of Northwestern; and Andy Kerr, Warner's predecessor at Palo Alto and now head man of the Colgate eleven, would be most prominently considered as his successor.

KID CHOCOLATE HEADLINE ATTRACTION IN NEW YORK

New York, Dec. 5—(A)—Kid Chocolate, recognized in New York state as featherweight champion of the world, defends his title claim in Madison Square Garden Friday night in the climax battle of a busy and profitable week for leather-pushers.

The Cuban "Keed's" challenger will be Fidel Labarba, Los Angeles whose two previous bids for the 126-pound title ended in defeat.

The clever Cuban won New York State recognition as featherweight king in August when he stopped Lew Feldman of New York in the 12th round of a 15 round engagement. His claims are disputed by Tommy Paul of Buffalo, who holds National Boxing Association recognition, and by Baby Arizmendi of Mexico.

The Chicago Stadium offers a heavyweight duel Friday, between King Levinsky, Chicago slugger, and Primo Carnera, Italian mountain. Mickey Walker, Rumson, N. J., heavyweight, will make his first start since his defeat by Max Schmeling in a 10-round match with Arthur Dekuh, large Italian from New York, at Los Angeles tomorrow night. Cleveland's show the same night will be topped by middleweight struggle between Paul Pirrone, of Cleveland and Sammy Slaughter of Indianapolis.

Teddy Yarosz, Pittsburgh's welterweight sensation, and Paulie Walker of Trenton, N. J., will collide in the main event of Detroit's card Friday night.

SALARY LIMIT FIGHT FACING MINORS

Class A. A. Baseball Row Among Magnates Now Opens in Columbus

CURE-ALL IS SOUGHT

Revolutionary Measures Taken Up Secretly

Columbus, O., 5—(A)—A fight over fixing salary limits in the minor leagues loomed today as the thirty-first annual convention of the National Association of Professional baseball leagues moved into its second day of debate.

The opening gun will be sounded today when the class AA leagues—the International, American Association and Pacific Coast—are scheduled to get together on the proposition, the Pacific coast group has announced that it will not attend the meeting and that it is not interesting in fixing a limit on the amount of money each club pays its players.

On the other hand the Association has already gone on record of fixing a limit and while the international magnates have taken no vote on the matter, several of the club owners have announced their intentions of favoring such a move.

The first of several important recommendations by a committee of five will be discussed today at a joint meeting of all leagues. This committee has been working strenuously the past few months in an effort to prescribe for the ailing minors.

The international league is slated for its annual meeting this morning with several important questions awaiting settlement. The national board of arbitration also opens its doors today and will remain in session until all business on its books has been cleared.

One of the most important problems before the western circuit was settled yesterday when it was decided to leave the membership of the league intact for another season.

Thomas Jefferson Hickey was unanimously re-elected president of the American Association at that group's initial meeting. It was the seventeenth year Hickey has been named high chief of the association.

Several "revolutionary" recommendations were secretly presented to association owners by the executive committee that immediately involved the group in a heated meeting. All action on the proposition was postponed until a later session this week.

The association moguls also discussed, without arriving at any definite conclusion, the financial conditions of the Kansas City and Toledo clubs.

Jablonsky Named Captain of Army

West Point, N. Y., Dec. 5—(A)—Harry J. (Jabbo) Jablonsky will captain Army's 1933 football team.

The 183-pound right guard was the unanimous choice of the lettermen at their annual meeting yesterday. A native of Clayton, Mo., a suburb of St. Louis, Jablonsky was a letterman in football, basketball and baseball at Washington University, St. Louis, before he was appointed to West Point in 1930.

He is an honor man at the academy, standing close to the top of his class academically. He is a Cadet Corporal, the highest ranking member of this class can hold. He is 23 years old.

Jeanette Rankin, former representative-at-large from Montana, now lives at Apalachee, Ga.

SPORT SLANTS

When Jefferson University of Dallas, Texas, defeated Oklahoma A. & M., champions of the Missouri Valley conference, 12 to 6, the other day, some football fans who had not heard of Jefferson before began to make enquiries.

They found that this school in downtown Dallas, with an enrollment of 500, found this autumn it had some good football players in its enrollment, good enough perhaps, to go up against colleges and universities four or five times its size with a fair prospect of winning. The answer seems to be that in eight games, Jefferson won them all, not a defeat or a tie marring its record.

The university specializes in law and business administration and has been in existence 10 years, although it never before had such a good football team. A fair football team and rather poor basketball team played last year, but in the summer the baseball team won a league pennant. The university operates the year around.

The school officials decided this year to go in for athletics in a big way and a check up on the enrollment showed a husky bunch of youngsters on hand who wanted to try their hand at football. A further check revealed a number of experienced players, waiting for a chance to go places.</

MURDER IN EDEN

by Charles Winfield Smith

READ THIS FIRST:
Jere Kane, student of criminology, returning to the United States from a vacation in Hawaii meets Ben MacQuarrie, an old detective friend, in Los Angeles where police chiefs are in convention. They take dinner together, and are joined by Chae Lee, a Los Angeles detective. As they dine in a fashionable resort Chae Lee points out some of the screen celebrities in attendance, among them one Nanette LeRoi, Hollywood's newest star recently "discovered" by Richard Bailey, noted director. While eating, Chae Lee is called to the phone. He returns, asks Kane and MacQuarrie to take a ride with him, and they all three drive out to Hollywood, where in a fashionable bungalow they find the body of Bailey, a gaping wound in his head, on the floor of the living room. The room shows signs of a struggle. With the other officers, Kane, who has been invited to assist in the case, goes over the entire room, questions Chae Lee, the butler who discovered the body on his return from the city, and notes a picture of Nanette LeRoi occupying the center of the mantel. They establish the fact that Bailey died at 9 o'clock, leave a detective to guard the room, and return to the city. On the way back the chief declares Bailey put up a desperate fight before he died. Kane disagrees with this, maintaining the director died without a chance to put up a struggle.

"What in the world are you doing in Hollywood?"

table and introduce himself; he did not want to enlist the services of the hotel manager nor any of his assistants, for his own reasons. He stroled to the door and gazed into the palm-lined dining room toward her table. She was not there, though her wrap was still draped over the back of her chair. He studied the dancing couples, but she was not among them, nor did he see her at any of the other tables. She must have gone out for a breath of fresh air. There was nothing to be gained by standing there. He turned back toward the lobby; it was filled with a milling throng of fashionably dressed men and women, with a smattering of men in the attire of the street; visiting police officials, he correctly surmised. "What a Roman holiday the Bailey case would make for them," he laughed somewhat sacrilegiously. Even as he stared at this colorful scene an attitude of intensity fell over the lobby. The throng seemed to fall back, struck by awe, to open a path toward the entrance to the dining room. Down that opening, as a king and queen might walk between their royal guards, came Nanette LeRoi and her escort. Kane started; he could scarcely believe his eyes. Once more, he told himself, Fate was playing kindly with him, just as she always had. The exotic star drew near; she was almost abreast of him. Her escort glanced casually, almost disdainfully, at him. She cast a regal look at him. Suddenly, as though impelled by some unseen power, both stopped, their eyes resting on him. A smile spread slowly over the actress' lips. She extended her hand: "Mr. Kane!" she cried. "What in the world are you doing in Hollywood?" He was puzzled. Hiding his feelings, he greeted her warmly and explained that he was merely stopping over on route to his home in New Orleans. There was something vaguely familiar about her; her accent was peculiarly American, not French. He tried to place her, but it was a difficult task. He had had the same feeling when he saw her picture in Richard Bailey's den, but then, under John Lee's laughing suggestion, he had partially forced himself to conclude that it was in some foreign theater that he had seen her, possibly in Paris, or Vienna or some other continental city on one of his world perambulations. Nanette LeRoi's escort took Kane's hand and shook it warmly. "Jere Kane, I should hate you," he exclaimed, "but inasmuch as that affair
